Users are urged to call listed agencies directly to verify services offered and confirm time, place and eligibility.
Our Children LA

Our Children LA (OCLA) is a Los Angeles based nonprofit organization formed to raise regional awareness and build public support for improving the life conditions for local children and youth under 25 with a unique emphasis on the underserved and at-risk. Children and youth represent the economic and political future of our region and they deserve careful attention and increased community support. OCLA’s founders believe that fostering a shared vision, improving regional dialogue, and facilitating community engagement is needed to break traditional barriers and encourage diverse communities to work together more closely to support needed change and increase investments in children’s policy and programming.

Along with this printed Directory of Services for Homeless Youth in Los Angeles County, OCLA is creating a companion mobile application and an online version. In addition, OCLA will be piloting a website that will not only host the online directory, but will also address the region’s critical need for a centralized resource center. Envisioned as a nonpartisan web “hub” that aggregates and disseminates comprehensive information, the OCLA website will initially focus on a single critical issue—the plight of Los Angeles’s unaccompanied homeless youth. It will serve as an online community center featuring content and resources designed to broaden local understanding about barriers and constraints experienced by homeless children and youth, offer a forum for advancing solutions, and build public will to champion the needs of this critically vulnerable population.

History and Acknowledgments

In response to the Los Angeles Public Library’s need for a resource guide that enabled librarians to connect the many homeless teens they served to trained providers, Denise McCain-Tharnstrom, Education Consultant II, Child Welfare and Attendance, Division of Student Support Services, Los Angeles County Office of Education offered invaluable support and guidance throughout the development of the Directory. Denise McCain-Tharnstrom, President, Our Children LA, served as project coordinator and oversaw community outreach, and content development. Homeless Coalition members from all regions of the county generously supported data collection efforts. Carla Buck, Partner at Quivira Solutions, volunteered her time and expertise to guide the creation and administration of the provider database. Graphic design for the layout and cover was provided by Jennifer Essen. Additional support was provided by Glenna Roberts, assistant to the ED of Our Children LA.

This Directory and The Need

Homeless Youth in Los Angeles County

The number of children and youth ages 24 and under experiencing homelessness on any given night is alarming by any measure. The National Alliance to End Homelessness estimates that more than half a million youth up to age 24 are in need of intervention services to exit homelessness and achieve economic and emotional stability. Key findings drawn from Los Angeles Homeless Service Authority’s 2013 single night count found over 6,000 youth in Los Angeles County on the street or in shelters while Jovenes Inc. postulates that numbers approach 10,000 or more.¹ According to Los Angeles County Office of Education’s 2012-2013 homeless student count, over 60,000 K-12 youth were homeless at one point during the school year, and 629 were identified as unaccompanied or living alone.² This same report noted that more than 16,500 high school students experienced homelessness during the 2012-2013 school year, raising the sobering possibility that some of these youth may soon find themselves alone on the streets.

More heartbreaking is that experts agree that these estimates are likely underreporting the actual numbers of youth experiencing homelessness. Unique challenges are associated with counting homeless youth including competing definitions of homelessness. Some agencies limit the term ‘homeless’ to a) unaccompanied minors ages 12-17 who are living apart from a parent or legally responsible guardian and b) unaccompanied young adults ages 18-24 who are on the street or in a shelter. Educators and others broaden the definition of homelessness to include those who are living in unstable or inadequate living situations, such as sleeping on a borrowed couch, or out of the back of a car. Youth of all ages rarely self-identify as homeless and often engage in strategies to avoid being seen, which presents another obstacle to obtaining an accurate count of their numbers.

Why are these youth homeless? Many are escaping abusive homes, emancipating from the foster care system or exiting from the juvenile justice system with nowhere to go, or were raised on the streets by homeless parents. A survey conducted by Children’s Hospital Los Angeles and the Hollywood Homeless Youth Partnership in 2009 found that 45% of respondents reported the presence of domestic violence between their parents or caregivers, and a high incidence of alcoholism and drug abuse. Most homeless youth have insufficient life skills, resources, community and emotional support to deal with the stresses of young adulthood. Homeless youth are faced with food insecurity, the lack of emotional and physical refuge, social isolation, and a heightened risk of criminal victimisation and contracting life threatening diseases. On once the streets, the necessities of survival and poor coping skills drive homeless youth to compromise their health and well-being through high risk behaviors including prostitution, increased substance use, illegal activity and violence. These crippling effects severely compromise their efforts to reconnect with society and succeed at education and employment. Without appropriate, and compassionate intervention, homeless youth are destined to become caught in the criminal justice system, enter an irreversible cycle of chronic homelessness, become total dependent on welfare, develop a permanent aversion to society or suffer an early death.

Purpose of this Directory

The 2015 Directory of Services for Homeless Youth is designed to connect unaccompanied homeless youth ages 12-25 in Los Angeles County to “first” providers of essential services. The 2015 Directory includes providers from all regions of the county offering supportive services that youth can access directly, without referral. It is intended for use by youth experiencing homelessness, as well as caring individuals, such as librarians, health professionals, food bank staff, educators, law enforcement, outreach workers and other volunteers who encounter homeless youth in their work and desire to help connect them to trained service providers.
